FORCED CONTRIBUTIONS.

It has been the custom for the party in power to levy contributions on all serving under them in public place for the purpose of carrying on campaigns and perpetuating themselves in place. This evil is one that is little thought of, and the magnitude of which is not generally appreciated. It strikes directly at the root of free institutions, and if suffered will inevitably destroy them. We refer to this matter for the reason that we have now before us a circular addressed to office holders requiring them to contribute various sums toward the successful carrying on of the coming canvass. A communication of this kind, if it means anything means that the party in power by giving a man an office consider that they have bought him, that he is their property, and his means subject to their orders. All this is in direct opposition to the spirit of our institutions, and we hope that all efforts of this kind from whatever source they come may be resisted as a direct attack on individual liberty.

LARGEST FARM IN THE WORLD.

Mr. George Grant, the enlightened founder of Victoria colony, in Kansas, is the owner of 575,000 acres of land, embracing the county of Ellis, which is larger than any dukedom in Europe. He is entitled to the credit of a public benefactor, by the introduction of the best blooded stock, and showing by example, the best manner of rearing, feeding and improving the foreign and domestic breeds of horses, cattle and sheep in this country. He has just wintered 7,000 sheep with a loss of less than one per cent. He wintered 337 cows without feeding them, except on several cold nights with hay, with only a loss of four calves and one cow. His success in this respect is due mainly to good shelter. The secret of saving food and preserving stock is shelter. During the past year Mr. Grant expended $6,200 in constructing shelter, and he has such faith in its advantages that he will expended double that amount during the coming season. He had $250,000 invested in stock, and is the owner of the English thoroughbred stallion Flodden, valued at $25,000, the father of which won the race in 1860 at Derby, in which half a million dollars changed hands. Mr. Grant has just returned from the East, and has on the way to his farm thirty odd brood mares, purchased in Ohio, Virginia and Kentucky. Mr. Grant is disposing of his land to actual settlers, and sells only to such as can afford to purchase a mile square or upwards. Among the large number of resident colonists and stock raisers who have purchased land of him, and are now raising stock in Victoria colony, are many young men of prominence, both in this country and England. The Hon. Walter Maxwell, young son of Lord Herries, of Everingham Park, Yorkshire, England, owns two sections, and is comfortably settled down to the healthful life of the ranchero. Then there are three bachelor sons of a Derbyshire clergyman, and the nephew of the Earl of Winchester, who is on his way from England to take up his home there. Two nephews of Mayor Gunther of New York City, and two young Shields of Boston, are also among the number.

A New Hampshire man has been amusing himself with a dictionary which he won at a spelling match, and finds that the syllable "con" is the beginning of 1253 words, all of which have 1639 different significations. No other three letters can be found that begin so many words as the syllable "con."

At a recent spelling match one man spelled it "pasnip" and got beat.

We find the following going the rounds of the press without credit, and as it meets our views we give it a place in the JOURNAL:

One of the worst features of our American politics—and we expect of the politics of every nation—is the tendency of partisan zeal and party feeling to make men not over scrupulous in political matters as to the means they employ to accomplish their ends. Frequently, those who are honorable in their dealing in all the other relations of life, will resort to almost anything for the sake of securing the triumph of the political party with which they are identified. And this disposition is manifested oftener and more offensively, perhaps, in the indulgence in undue and unwarrantable personalities than in any other way. To a certain extent the private character of candidates is a legitimate matter of discussion in a political contest. There is much force in the saying, that in casting their votes, the chief consideration with the people should be principles, not men; but they can make sure the triumph of the principals they advocate only by putting in office men whose honesty and good faith can be relied on. And thus, whatever there may have been in the past record of a candidate, whatever weakness or defects there may be in his character which indicate that he is unworthy of confidence or in any way unfit for the position to which he aspires; are very proper subjects of criticism; and his political opponents are in the legitimate line of their duties when they expose or call attention to such things. But beyond this it is not in accordance with the just rules of an honorable political warfare to go. But it is not unfrequent that the private life of a candidate is overhauled, from his earliest years, and whatever there may be in its record that it is thought injure his prospects with any class of voters, either through an appeal to their religious opinions, their prejudices, or in whatever way, is held up to the gaze of the public and commented on with special anction. The sacred privacy of family and social affairs is oftentimes in nowise respected. It is, moreover, a fact, in entire accordance with the reason of things, and confirmed, we believe, by the history of popular elections of all times and places, that the weaker party is in principle, the more dishonest it is in purpose and the more it is inclined to resort to personalities. At the members of a party have principles—principles in which they sincerely and strongly believe, and whose triumph they honestly desire—they will naturally devote their chief efforts to the advocacy of those principles; if they really believe in the right and justness of their cause, believe that it is a cause that will recommend itself to a correct and enlightened moral sense, they will not be ashamed of it, not be inclined to dodge or obscure the main issue, will not hesitate to openly urge its claims upon the public favor. It is only when politicians are conscious to themselves of a weakness in principles, only when they know that their cause is unworthy, and that it would be condemned by a correct and intelligent public sentiment, that they seek to divert the attention of the people from it, strive to lead them astray from the question of principle to be decided, by assailing the personal characters of their political opponents. The indulgence by a party in undue personalities is a virtual confession of the weakness and unworthiness of its cause. The private characters of Republican statesmen have been assailed the most bitterly and persistently by the Brick Layer class of publications—a class whose principles and purposes the respectable men of all parties condemn.

The old-fashioned plague, which under the name of "black death" destroyed 25,000,000 people in Europe in the 14th century, has made its appearance in Asia Minor. The medical skill of the 19th century has as yet found no specific for the dreadful scourge.

RECTORIAL.—Baltimore talks of returning Boston's compliments to the Fifth Maryland Regiment by inviting the military of the Rub to come down and help celebrate the battle of North Point on the 12th of September.

GRAND PICNIC.—The second grand picnic excursion of the Gold Hill Miners' Union will take place at the Bowers Mansion, on Saturday, August 7th.

RETURNED.—We are glad to see the Rev. Mr. Tabor once more among us. He has been stopping in Carson for some time, where two of his children were sick with the small pox and also a child of the Rev. Mr. Kelley. All are now happily recovered.

We are informed that Nate Ross has the contract for painting the Episcopal Church now in course of erection.

MOUNT ROSE AND WHAT IS TO BE SEEN THEREFROM.

On Saturday last Sam Hilliard, A. C. Hobart and C. H. Stoddard left Reno for a trip to the summit of Mount Rose. They made the ascent successfully and returned safely; but we will let them give the account in their own language: We left Reno at 2 p. m. and after riding about four hours reached Mackey & Fair's upper mill, from thence we followed a northwesterly direction about two miles and struck the Big Meadows, where we found two of them. Evans' sheep herders camped. Here we held a council of war, the result of which was a determination to stay all night. Among other things we found here a roll of butter tied to the end of a larvat, confined on account of its strength. It was branded "M & D., Reno." We commenced with fear and trembling to investigate the state of our dinner, when one of the boys found a quarter of lamb suspended from a tree. We didn't stop to argue as to the rights of ownership, but with the assistance of a frying pan borrowed from the sheep herders, soon made a hearty meal from a mutton chop and a cup of hot coffee; then spread our blankets for the night, not forgetting to look out for a good tree to climb in case the festive grizzly should call around. Morning came, and after a repetition of the mutton and coffee we saddled our "Rosinantes" and were soon winding our way along the slope, climbing higher and higher, until about 11 o'clock, when we halted at the foot of Mount Rose. Here a magnificent panorama opened out before us. Truckee, Donner Lake, Boca and the C. P. snow sheds were spread before our eyes. Now we began the ascent in earnest and soon the broad expanse of Lake Tahoe was visible, then Mackey & Fair's flame and Huffer's and in a few moments more we could plainly see Reno and the glistening waters of the beautiful Truckee. Very soon the Summit was attained and we stood super Rosa. Here we took a drink, or rather, ate a lot of snow to quench our thirst, snow balled each other for awhile, and then planted the flag, and a copy of the Nevada State Journal. Sitting here upon the highest peak of the Sierras for many miles and viewing the broad landscape which is spread at our feet, would inspire the pen of the veriest dillard; but the space allotted to us forbids that we should enlarge upon the beautiful scene. Sitting with our face to the North, there is spread before us as a map Reno and the Truckee meadows, turning to the right we see Washoe, Washoe Lake, and a small southern portion of Carson City and the whole of Carson Valley, thence turning to the right again we have a full view of Lake Tahoe, Truckee, and Donner Lake together with the snow sheds; further down we see Boca and Prosser Creek and if we mistake not Lonkey & Smith's mill. Far in the distance looms the shadowy form of Mount Shasta, nearer the green carpet of Sierra Valley, while Pyramid Lake and the sink of the Carson are in plain view. Having feasted our eyes sufficiently on the beautiful scene we descended to the foot of the mountain, where daylight on Monday morning found us wrapped in our blankets. The first sight that met our eyes in awaking was three large deer, within fifty yards of us, but being good citizens and having the fear of the game law before our eyes, we suffered them to depart in peace, and made the best of our way to Reno. Go thou and do likewise.

Fun.—Yesterday afternoon a fire broke out in the tool house connected with the Section House to the west of town on the O. F., completely destroying it. The yard engine was promptly on hand and did good work, preventing the spread of the flames.

Immigrants.—Five car-loads of immigrants passed Reno yesterday.

"Little Smokey."—This is the title of a small volume now offered for sale by Mrs. C. M. Churchill. Mrs. Churchill has been with us before. She was here at the time of the fire and worked as hard as anyone. Her little book consists of a series of letters of travel and is interesting to all in this section, and is worth the price, 50 cts.

HAIR RESTORATIVE.—Smokey at the International is agent for a new hair restorer, a sort of pomade, guaranteed to produce a crop on the balddest head, and also to restore grey hair to its original color. This, like all great inventions, was the result of accident. It dropped on Smokey, so to speak, without warning. For particulars apply to Smokey at the International bar.

THE CAPITAL.—Jake Becker is determined not to be outdone in the way of eatables. He has secured the services of Messrs. Tom Buckner and D. H. Flint, than whom there are no better stewards or oyster cooks in existence.

THE railroad company having become tired of furnishing free lodgings to bums are about erecting a fence along the platform below the depot, with a view to preventing "Vags" from sleeping on the trucks.

YESTERDAY was as hot as usual. In the afternoon it clouded up and a few drops of rain fell, and for a time it looked as though there was some chance for relief, but it passed by on the other side.

RUSTICATING.—H. L. Fish, B. F. Locke, W. R. Chamberlain and I. B. Marshall and families have gone to the Hot Springs near Summit to enjoy the cool air of the mountains.

PERSONAL.—Yesterday we had the pleasure of meeting Governor Bruley. He seems almost entirely recovered from his illness.

We noticed the pleasant countenance of ex-Attorney General Buckner on our streets yesterday.

JURIST'S COURT.—Capt. Gilson, J. P., was yesterday occupied with the case of Haydon & Cain vs. Mary Jane Howard.

Mrs. Julia Harvey gives notice that she will open an evening dancing school for ladies and gentlemen, at the Reno Brass Band Hall, commencing on Friday, July 30th. Mrs. Harvey gives instruction in all the modern ball-room dances and will hold regular classes on each and every Tuesday and Friday from 7:30 to 10 o'clock. Terms, five dollars per month, payable in advance.

"This new organization received its certificate of authority on the 25th ult. (Aug.) It issued its first policies upon the 1st inst. (Sep.) and will have about $200,000 on its books by the 1st of October. We are not astonished at such success when we look at its features and management. The 'Alliance Mutual Life' has secured a number of experienced and successful agents, and it will be advisable for others to secure territory speedily, as the Company is certain under its management and features, to become one of the standard corporations of its character in the country."—Philadelphia Underwriter, September 15, 1875.
